2. Carlo Marchesetti was born on 17 January 1850 in Trieste, the main port of the Austrian Empire, and died there on 1 April 1926, when the city had already been annexed to the Kingdom of Italy. Even though he had a passion fot botany and zoology, in 1874 Marchesetti graduated in medicine in Wien. He had then worked as a physician in Trieste for one year only. In September 1874, Marchesetti accompanied English explorer Richard Francis Burton (at the time, consul in Trieste) during a field trip to Istria and Dalmatia; he was fascinated by the world of archaeology, and found out that the so-called castellieri (hillforts) – until then believed to be Roman encampments – actually belonged to the prehistoric populations of the region.
