3. Identify What Influences Your Negative Self-Talk

Next, determine what is influencing those specific messages. In other words, where are they coming from? For example, was there a previous public speaking experience where you lost your train of thought and it affected your confidence? Were you assigned to conduct a training, but lacked the resources to build it in the way you envisioned? Do you generally feel discomfort in social situations and believe others pick up on your discomfort? There are many influences that may underlie negative self-talk, and it is important to understand the factors that are uniquely yours.
