3. Okay, so far so good. So how are we going to do that? How are we going to turn the words on the page into meaningful action that not only benefits the people we work with, but also nourishes our individual purposes so we can build sustainable careers? Let's begin by taking a look at these five social work values—human dignity and worth, social justice, service to humanity, integrity, and competence. What do they mean to you? Do any of them jump off the page and excite you more than others? Why? Do any of them match directly with the personal values and strengths that you identified during the first phase in last edition's column? How would you go about embodying these values in your everyday life? What would your work look like if you were practicing from this value base?
